ZTAB Player

ZTB Player is a player specifically designed for text-based video games, those written using Adventure Game Studio, Gamemaker, or Story Text Engine. Although the player is a basic tool, it does not differ much from a screen reader or a screen reader for custom games, as it uses its own concept of text and color scheme to interact with the game that it is being played. A lightweight tool For a player of this size, ZTB Player can execute files that are in the size of approximately 5 MB, which is a larger amount than most video players, including VLC. However, it still has enough resources to run games that make no use of the GPU, which means that it can easily be used on the go, the device with the video player being your main computer. Different interaction concepts A feature that sets ZTB Player apart is that it uses a different concept of text and color schemes, allowing it to read and highlight the text as you see fit and present information in a way that can easily be understood. This makes it a very interesting tool for a video game that you simply want to play without worrying about the details. The application The interface is very simple, with a left panel being dedicated to links and folders, as well as a search field. If you need to change the interaction pattern, or simply view information about the game, you can click on the element that appears on the right side of the interface, which is the list of the stories currently displayed in the files being played. The top part displays the first story in the list, as well as the name of the game the story is part of, while the lower part displays a title to give you an idea of the nature of the story. Furthermore, a menu bar is available at the top of the window, with a set of commands that include playing the current game, stopping the story at a certain point, and saving the current game. ZTAB Player Controls: Before starting a story, you need to create a ZTB file that is compatible with the player. This process can be done using ZTAB Editor, and it's not a very difficult process, once the necessary setup has been done. As a result, you are not just limited to text-based titles, but you can play any standard adventure game that runs on the standard version of the Adventure Game Studio or Gamemaker engine. A full screen mode can be selected for the player, which improves the experience in case it is used with audio
